

Research Partners

Research has the power to change the outlook for those with congenital/ childhood heart disease, but sadly investigations in this area remain significantly underfunded.

HeartKids is the leading research funding body in Australia to drive research into the causes, treatment and management of congenital/ childhood heart disease. Our research partnerships allow a unique opportunity to improve long term health outcomes for those affected by congenital/ childhood heart disease and their families.

With the support of our sponsors and donors, HeartKids is proud to have committed over $3.5 million of funding towards research projects looking to unlock the mysteries of congenital/ childhood heart disease.

We are incredibly fortunate to work with the following research partners committed to improving the treatment and management of congenital/ childhood heart disease:
